ASU Career Webinars are live career workshops conducted via the web. You can participate from anywhere. All you need is a phone and a computer to see and hear the sessions. Since webinars are live, you'll even be able to ask questions and get immediate answers, just as you would in an in-person career workshop.

What's the difference between career webinars and career workshops?
The information covered in both webinars and in-person workshops is the same. The only difference is that webinars don't require you to be on campus to participate. It's fun to attend a workshop with your fellow students but sometimes that isn't practical so webinars provide you with an alternative.

How does it work?
Choose a topic that interests you and convenient date to participate. You will need both a phone and a computer with web access in a reasonably quiet place. Each webinar session has a login. There is no registration fee for webinars but participants are responsible for their long distance or cell phone charges.

Occasionally a webinar will have too many interested attendees for our system to accommodate. If you receive a message that the webinar is full when you log in, please accept our apology for any inconvenience this might cause. Check the schedule for the next webinar or in-person workshop on that topic.
All ASU students and alumni are welcome to participate in the webinars. Those in maroon (on the left below) are offered by staff from the W. P. Carey MBA Career Management Center. Those in gold (listed here on the right) are conducted by a consortium of ASU Career Services staff from all four campuses and the staff from the Ira A. Fulton School of Engineering Career Center. Please note that login information is different for each set of webinars and remember: your cell phone and long distance rates apply.
