Establishing an ongoing, trusting relationship with a primary care provider is an important step in maintaining a healthy lifestyle. In addition to helping you with preventive care, a primary care physician assists when necessary to identify and treat common medical conditions. They also help in assessing the urgency of medical problems and make referrals to medical and surgical specialists when needed.

Mayo Clinic Primary Care providers are specialists in primary care and are part of the overall Mayo Clinic team of specialty providers. Physicians are educated as M.D.s or D.O.s, have completed residencies as part of their training and are board certified in Family Medicine or Internal Medicine. Mayo Clinic Primary Care physicians are trained experts in many elements of family-oriented care including counseling, education, nutrition, safety and family planning. They will partner with you to provide comprehensive care, taking into account social, behavioral, economic, cultural, spiritual and biologic dimensions.

Primary Care is a team-based practice at Mayo Clinic. The teams consist of physicians, residents, advanced practitioners, registered nurses and other allied health staff who work together to provide patients timely and coordinated care. If a provider is not available when you need an appointment you may be scheduled with another member of the team. This team-based approach provides you with same-day and next-day appointments for urgent issues and timely appointments for routine and follow-up care.
